THE HOBGOBALO-GINKASAUR

(By G. A. Stephens)

As far back as 1872 a young man named Clinton Sparks, then working at the old square's sawmill on Larvey's stream, in Maine, contrived a sort of tractor for hauling logs a distance of two miles on a winter road across a swamp. That winter nearly all the horses in New England were incapacitated for many weeks by a mysterious influenza called the "polio-zoote." Every one of the horses used for lumbering at our place had it, and many of them were so slow to recover that at one time work for the winter had to stop altogether. As some elderly people remember, there was little snow for a while that year, although cold weather prevailed, and the ground had frozen.

Clinton Sparks, who was a mechanical genius in his way, mounted a small steam engine he had at the mill on car wheels and connected the crankshaft with gears that turned the hind axle. He had said several times that he could haul logs in that way; and as the horses were disabled the old square let him make the experiment and paid the bills.

My description of the mechanism may, I fear, be somewhat imperfect. I did not see much of it myself. Adision and I were attending school at the academy six miles away, and only at odd times when we came home to the farm did we hear what Sparks was doing. The little engine he used was one used for stripping stumps, etc., and he had other and an upright, tubular boiler and was of sheet metal, horse power. Gasoline had not then come into use. Pitch-pine wood, split into short fagots, was the fuel burned in the firebox; it made a hot, but smoky, fire. Sparks also devised a whistle for his tractor, to let the mill folks know he was coming across the swamp. It didn't give a whistle exactly, but rather a succession of loud, brazen snorts. When in motion the engine did a great deal of puffing. It should be stated that the road across the frozen swamp was level and nearly straight. What steering had to be done was accomplished by means of a single front wheel and a six-foot lever.

This novel tractor was used for four or five weeks early in the winter until deeper snows came and the horses got over the "zoote" as the disease was often called.

There may have been similar contrivances at the time or even before then; probably there had not scarcely have thought Sparks' invention worth the trouble except for a humorous incident that happened while he was running it; for he had always run it himself; nobody else could.

Sparks was a joker as well as a genius. There was often an uproar at the mill owing to pranks of his and Elphège Culley's.

For two of these men were together for an hour, there was sure to be high time.

Culley was the Irish foreman at the old square's lumber camp, five miles above the sawmill, but he was often at the mill and had a great deal to say about Sparks' log hauler. A constant contest of wits was going on between the pair. It is not easy to say which came out ahead, the Yankee or the Celt. The Irishman was quicker-witted, but the Yankee was the most fertile in devising pranks, some of them outrageously ones, which for a few moments made Culley fairly dazed with rage. But I think that nevertheless he really loved Sparks.

Zachary Larvey, of Larvey's mill was another lumberman whose work the "polio-zoote" greatly delayed. His timbers were on the other side of Larvey's Stream, and that winter he had a lumber camp there. He had a crew of nineteen choppers, all from the Petawawa region in New Brunswick, all red-faced Scotishmen. Amazing! That was not quite so remarkable a circumstance as it may sound at first. The Seventy-ninth Adventurers kept Saturday instead of Sunday for their Sabbath and day of rest. No lumber company would hire Seven-tynine Adventurers to work with others not of that belief, etc. account of the other end extra expense of having two Sundays in one week. "Seventy-nine" worked, etc. etc. The effort to have together enough to make up a full crew and all live at one place.

The crew from Telford had come to Malone in a body and hired for the winter with old Dick Larvey. They were congenial workers, steady and trustworthy in their habits, which is more than can be said of all loggers. On Saturday they sat round the camp and read their bibles, but they made up for it by working perhaps a week, he ran it up to the old square's upper camp one Sunday—following the logging road—to exhibit it to Culley and the crew.

Really some proper Sunday entertainment ought to be devised for logging crews off in the woods to keep them out of mischief. They have a whole day on their hands with nothing to do. Certain lumber companies have tried to introduce services and amusements, but not much progress has been made as yet; and at the time I now refer to nothing of the kind had been even attempted. The crew was left to amuse itself in any uporous way it chose.

While at the camp in the afternoon Sparks repeatedly heard off to the westward on the other side of Larvey's Stream the distant crash of falling trees, and finally asked what logging crew was at work there on Sunday. "Aw, it's aint Zach Larvey's Canadians!" Culley said. "The hayen't lost the run of the days of the 'wake'!"

That proved highly interesting to Sparks and, one thing leading to another, the two jokers hatched a project to have fun after dark that night with the tally arrived province men.

They set to work and built a long frame of green poles over the log hauler, charred the smoke pipe on one side, and covered the whole with a big black tarpaulin, which had been brought to camp spread over a load of food supplies.

At the rear they put up a tall ten foot tall with a seat in it; and at the front they cut two holes in the tarpaulin the size of saucers, to slant open.

Then they cut a piece of oak bark, four feet long with the nostrils, and below that they cut a transverse arch three feet long and folded the cover back to represent a huge, half-open mouth with grinding teeth. To cap the whole they rigged two tall, pick oars of white birch bark.

When lighted from inside, the figure was a grotesque, not to say frightening, contrivance. They had no end of a good time making it all that afternoon—a nice Sunday job—and they had it done by sunset.

There was a winter road where hay and other supplies had been hauled in from a landing place on Larvey's stream and old man Larvey's logging camp was near the stream on the other side. As dusk fell in the woods Sparks fired up, and they then stood back to admire their handiwork.

"She's a宫殿!" Culley exclaimed. "Spanky, me boy, shall we name it?"

"Why not?" said Sparks. "We will call it a hobgobalo-ginkasaur."

Culley danced with glee. "Say that again, Sparky! Say it again, so I can git the right toun at um in my mouth!"

They were about starting out when Culley cried: "Hold on! To give em the full benefit av ut, wan av us morn on ahead an prepem their minds forntain the toun. They ketches lost sight av ut! Off'll be the advance messenger, so to speak. Come on shably behind me, Sparky and me smot' till ye made moonkabout!"

Culley ran on ahead, and the way he prepared the mind of the unsuspecting provincials was by bursting in upon them while they were peacefully eating supper, shouting: "Rin-tin-tin for your lives! Olive come to warn ya! There's a hobgobalo-gink-saur comin'! Rin! Rin! Rin! Ol tell ye! You're not a moment to lose! He's ravaged our camp. He's off to aw our men! Jist now he's headin' this way!"

Culley dashed out of the camp as precipitately as he had dashed in and ran back across the stream on the ice to meet Sparks.

But the provincials were slow to take alarm. They surmised that what had frightened Culley was nothing more formidable than a mouse, and they had not been scared in the wilds of Petticoats to be afraid of either a mouse or a bear. They followed him out of doors, however, and stood curiously peering into the obscurity and listening. Then immediately they began to hear from the direction of the other lumber camp exciting sounds; shouts and yells and terrific snorts.

Like steady, sober men of good consequence, they stood wondering and for some time wholly unafraid. But the shouts drew nearer, and presently through the gloom of the spruce woods a pale, uncouth glare diffused itself.

Whatever it was, it came on, crashing through and snorting and, on nearing the stream, disclosed the outline of a monstrous head with huge eyes, a nose from which breath issued in vaporous spurts and a mouth and teeth the size of which beggar all description!

It is an axiom among military men that no army runs like an army of brave soldiers when it is routed. The Canadian stood ground and stared with his belligerent, sinewy gaze, a red streak across his face, and started the stream and started to cross over where they were. Without word or outcry of any sort they soon again broke and ran. And, oh, how they ran!

After half a mile or so three of four of them had climbed trees. But most of the crew fled straight on down the road to Larvey's mills—seven miles—toward the sea.

It is a fact among military men

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1924

Alberta, through the joint arrangement between the Dominion and Provincial governments and the railways, about 100 families have been moved from the dry areas in the southeastern part of the province to new locations in the foothill country and in different districts of northern Alberta. An effort was made during the year, by the provincial department of agriculture, to establish a market in Japan for livestock, and success attended the first small shipment made by the government. Another shipment is now being forwarded. Reduced freight rates on cattle to the Orient have been arranged recently, and it is hoped in time to establish a steady market.

Canadian Apples
King of Them All

Canada has taken a foremost place in the apple growing world. Awards made at the Imperial Fruit Show in London, England, and at every other show at which exhibits have been made, prove this beyond a shadow of a doubt. In flavor and palatability the Canadian grown apple has no superior. An interesting and attractively gotten up booklet published by the fruit branch at Ottawa, and obtainable at the publications branch of the department of agriculture, Ottawa, in establishing these facts, outlines the produce of what is termed the "King of Fruits," in the country as a whole and in each of the apple growing provinces, gives details of the fruit Act relative to the grading of apples, describes their food value, and supplies upwards of a hundred recipes for making sauces, butter, confections of various sorts, pies, puddings, relishes, salads, etc., in which the apple is the principal ingredient. Whether fresh, dried, evaporated, or canned, or used in any way, the apple, the booklet points out, is a wholesome food, easily prepared, attractive, and palatable at all times. It furnishes mineral salts and organic acids; it possesses important nutritive value, and has medicinal virtue also, especially if eaten at the beginning of a meal or between meals. It is not difficult to agree with the remark that "no housewife should be without a box or barrel of Canadian grown apples." To facilitate stocking up in this manner a statement is furnished in the booklet of the proper season or period during which various varieties should be used, extending over the nine months from September in one year to May in the next, both inclusive.

LIFE

Man comes into this world without his consent, and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstandings by the balance of the species.

In his infancy he is an angel; in his boyhood days he is a devil; in his manhood he is anything from a braggadocio to a fool; if he raises a family, he is a chump; if he raises a small cheque, he is a thief; and then the law raises the devil with him; if he is a poor man, he is a poor manager, and has no sense; if he is rich, he is dishonest, but considered smart; if he is in politics, you can't guess him, as he is an undetectable citizen; if he goes to church, he is a hypocrite; if he stays away from church, he is a sinner; if he devotes himself to foreign missions, he does it for show; if he doesn't, he is stingy and a tight-wad.

When he comes into the world, everybody wants to kiss him; before he goes out, they want to kick him. If dies young, there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age, he is simply in the way and living to save funeral expenses. This life is a funny road, but we all like to travel it just the same.

B.C. NOW FOLLOWS
ALBERTA EXAMPLE

Victoria, Oct. 31.—Attorney general A. M. Manson announced today the resignation of the whole of the liquor control board and the appointment of Hugh Davidson of Vancouver, to the position of sole commissioner, at a salary of $12,000.

This appointment follows the announcement made by the attorney general some months ago, of a complete reorganization of the liquor commission of British Columbia.

HALLOWE'EN; WHERE IT ORIGINATED;
SOME OF THE OLD BELIEFS AND
CUSTOMS, A FEW GAMES TO PLAY

Hallowe'en or All Hallows Eve, the name given to the 31st of October as the vigil of Halloweens or All Saints Day. Though now known as little else but the eve of the Christian festival, Hallowe'en and its forms attendant festivals and ceremonies long antedate Christianity. The old Romans held it at the first of November in honor of Pomona, the goddess of fruit trees. In Britain the Druids celebrated a festival at the same time in honor of the sun god, and in thanksgiving for harvest, and the two festivals seem to have become one in the eyes of the Britons. When the people became Christians the early church fathers wisely let them keep their old feast, but gave it a new association by holding it in commemoration of all departed souls. Thus the eve of the festival became to be called All Hallow Eve. The name comes from the old English word "halwe", or as we now say "holy".

Many beliefs grew up about this day, such as the belief that on this night the spirits of the departed were allowed to visit their old homes. In many parts of our old countries food was left, hearths were carefully swept, and chairs were set in order before the inhabitants of the villages went to rest. Many of the old superstitions, some of them going back as far as pagan times, came to this country with the Puritans, and although they lost their meaning long ago, we still keep some of the quaint customs.

PROPHETY BY FEATHERS
Take three small, fluffy feathers. On three small pieces of paper write the words "blonds," "brunette," and "medium," and attach these pieces of paper to the end of the quills. To make the test, hold up the feathers by their tops, and with a puff of breath send them flying towards the table. The one that falls nearest to you tells the complexion of your true love. The test should be made three times to make the prophecy quite sure.

BURNING NUTS

Name two nuts and place them on the stove or on a shovel over an open fire. Repeat this charm:

Nuts I place upon the fire,
And to each nut I give a sweet-hearts name.

If either of the nuts blisssed or steams, it shows that the owner of the nut has a cranky temper. If the nut pops together and toward each other it shows that the friendship between the two persons will probably increase and grow warmer. If, however, one does not pop at all, or they fall away from each other, the feeling will grow cooler and the friends will be divided.

GHOST WRITING

With a perfectly new pen, dipped in pure lemon juice, write a number of charms or prophecies on small pieces of paper, and let them dry when the writing will disappear. Fold the paper and place them in a basket from which each person draws one. When the pieces of paper are held over the heat of a lamp or candle, the heat causes the writing to reappear, and the prophecy can be read. This trick can be made quite mystical by the use of appropriate ceremonies, such as reading the prophecies in a room dimly lighted by a colored lamp over which the slips must be read. One who is troubled with diarrhea, dysentery, colic, cramps, pains in the stomach, cholera, or any other looseness of the bowels be sure and immediately purchase a Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and sea holly; it will give you relief from your bowel troubles.

This preparation has been on the market for the past 80 years and has been used to accomplish all we claim for it, and our claim is that it will give almost instantaneous relief in all bowel troubles.

Mr. D. E. Franey, Aylesford, N. S., writes: "A few years ago I was troubled with diarrhea and severe cramps in my stomach. I tried several different remedies, but they did not seem to help me. I heard about Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so I tried a bath of it. I only took a few doses, and in a short time was entirely relieved of my pains."

Board Reduces Standard
Of Lower Grades of Wheat

Winipeg, Oct. 31.—The Western Grain Standards Board, at their annual meeting here, set the commercial grades of wheat as numbers four, five and six, which will be the basis upon which this year's crop will be marketed, lowering to some extent the standards of these grades as compared with last year. Very careful consideration was given to the matter, but it was decided to be as lenient as possible in favor of the western producer without damaging the reputation of Canadian wheat insofar as grading is concerned.

Whether this will be of direct benefit to the farmer remains to be seen, in the opinion of local grain men, as the spreads may widen sufficiently to wipe out any advantage that may be secured in the lowering of the grades. The grade number two feed is eliminated entirely.

BETTER OUTLOOK IN WEST

Hon. R. G. Brett, lieutenant governor of Alberta, who returned a few days ago from Toronto, said in an interview at the Fair Grey hotel, Winnipeg, that he had found the people throughout the west developing a very optimistic outlook and that a better feeling is prevailing generally. He considers that there is good reason for the optimism.

Local Druggists Have Modern Remedies for Colds

A Vaporizing Salve which is Rubbed Over Throat and Chest for Colds.

When Vicks Vapo-Rub, the "extra-mild" method of treating says, throat, bronchitis, deep chest colds, or croup, is applied over throat or chest, the ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat.

These vapors, inhaled with each breath carry the medication directly to the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and helping to clear the lungs. At the same time Vicks acts as a counter-irritant, stimulating the skin, and thus helps the vapors inhaled to break up the intestinal colds.

Colds are usually relieved over night.

OLD CROW BOURBON WHISKEY

BOTTLED UNDER FEDERAL GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

This advertisement is not published or displayed by the Liquor Control Board or the Government of Alberta.

THE BRITISH PREFERENCE

The rejection of the proposals of the last imperial conference of the British house of commons, and the subject repeal of the McKenna duties, on which Canada and the rest of the empire received a preference, has been responsible for a certain amount of soreness, and for the feeling that while Canada gives Great Britain a substantial preference, she receives nothing in return.

The object of this article is to explain why it is impossible for Britain to grant a preference to Canada, and what she does instead.

The basis of Great Britain's prosperity is as follows. The British Isles are a small and very thickly populated country and cannot grow more than about one-third of the food necessary to support the population. The remaining two thirds must be imported, and must be paid for, whether they come from other portions of the empire or from foreign countries.

This payment cannot be made in gold, which Britain does not produce, and while a certain amount of her imports of food are paid for by the export of coal and by various services, such as shipping, banking and insurance, which Britain performs for other countries, the bulk must be met by importing raw materials of low value and manufacturing them into goods of high value, and selling them abroad. The difference between these two values is then available for buying food.

Now, in order to be able to sell manufactured goods abroad, it is obvious that British manufacturers must be able to place their products in foreign markets as cheaply as all events as the conditions, and consequently a protective tariff which would increase the price of everything the manufacturer had to buy, would be a suicidal policy.

Great Britain does, however, give very real and substantial preference to the empire in other ways, of which the following are the most important.

1.—Defence—Without the protection of the navy, Canada's seaborne commerce would be at the mercy of an enemy. The great crop of 1915 could not have been marketed if the seas had not been kept open by the navy.

2.—Diplomatic and Consular Services—Canada does not maintain diplomatic and consular services, but has the free use of those maintained by Britain. Canadians abroad receive exactly the same assistance from the British consuls as Englishmen.

3.—Customs Duties and the Embargo—Britain gives an empire preference on the few articles on which her tariff for revenue is imported, viz.: sugar, tea, coffee, coco, etc. Canada does not produce any of the above with the exception of maple sugar, the only benefit she receives is in respect of the sugar content of manufactured goods exported to England. Canada has, however, the exclusive right, of any country outside the British Isles, to export live cattle to Great Britain. This is a preference given exclusively to Canada.

4.—Financial—The supply of capital at reasonably low rates of interest is by far the greatest service England can render to Canada and this is encouraged by the following means:

(a) Income and Super Tax—Incomes of residents of Great Britain, when derived from investments in foreign countries, are subject to the full British income and super tax, in addition to any tax already levied in the country of origin.

Incomes derived from investments within the empire, however, received a special rebate of up to 50 per cent of the British taxes, on production of income tax receipt from the dominion in question. The result of this is to forcibly encourage British investors to put their money in British instead of in foreign countries.

(b) Trustee Securities—A very large amount of money in England is in the hands of trustees, because it is the custom to settle money in trust on marriages and in entails. These funds may only be invested in certain gilt-edged securities, such as any British government loan, or loans guaranteed by the British government or by any dominion or provincial government. As a result of this restriction, the rate of interest is naturally lower in the open market, and consequently dominion and provincial governments are able to raise loans at a lower rate of interest than foreign governments. The benefits of this scheme, which, in its 25 years of operation, have been of enormous value, have been somewhat modified temporarily in the case of Canada, by the large volume of American investments in Canadian securities (and which has recently discovered Canada) and also by the fact that the British war debt is so large that the field of investment is much bigger. In addition to this the depreciation of the pound sterling naturally discourages investors from buying dollar securities. This latter condition will pass, and Canada will again be able to obtain accommodation in London at

ASTHMA NEVER CAME BACK

Since Taking The Fruit Treatment in "Fruit-a-lives"

Read the letter from Mrs. J. M. Pennington of Newmarket, P. O. Pennington, who writes with bronchial asthma and no one knows what I suffered during the winter. I began having choking spells and would just stop breathing and could not speak. The doctor said I could do nothing for me.

In the spring of 1920, I started taking "Fruit-a-lives" and soon my choking spells became easier and I have not had one since May 7th, 1920.

It is such a relief to be able to go to bed at night without fear of having to get up in the night for an hour or more as I did all that winter, but never have to now, all because I take "Fruit-a-lives". I sleep well every night, 22 and 60s, a box at all dealers sent postpaid by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

crossed markets, is now guaranteeing bonds under the above act to approved industries, on condition that the money is spent in England. These guarantees are only given to industrial concerns in the empire, who reap the advantage of being able to borrow in London on the most favorable terms, which the British government's guarantee makes possible. Your edition of last Saturday mentioned a guarantee of $400,000 to a newspaper factory in Quebec.

There are, of course, other ways in which England endeavors to repay the benefits she receives from Canada and the other dominions, besides the above, but these are perhaps the most important, and they are so little known to the man in the street that it may be of interest to your readers to hear about them.

U.F.A. DECLINES TO CALL MEETING TO REVISE PLATFORM

The central executive of the U.F.A. has declined to call a conference for the purpose of revising the provincial platform. At a meeting of the executive held in Calgary last week consideration was given to a letter from the Hand Hills constituency association, requesting the central executive to call a conference of representatives of all the provincial constituencies for this purpose.

The executive decided to write to the Hand Hills association that it had no authority to call such a convention. Only one had responded to the resolution of the annual convention sent out in the spring asking that they report to the executive what action they wished to take with regard to the appointment of representatives from each association to draft a platform. If any general demand came for calling such a convention, with adequate instructions as to time, place and manner of financing, the central executive, it was stated, would be glad to give all assistance possible.

The 1925 convention of the United Farmers of Alberta will be held on January 29 to 23, inclusive. These dates were chosen at the last meeting of the central executive, when H. E. G. H. Schofield was appointed to act as a committee to secure accommodation for the delegates in Calgary.

Two resolutions received by the executive at this meeting will probably be dealt with at the annual convention. They were from meetings representing the Victoria and Red Deer federal constituencies, asking central office to call a meeting of Alberta representatives of the federal constituencies, for the purpose of bringing about a definite policy of co-operation in the federal house. After some discussion, the executive came to the unanimous decision that the provincial convention was the only U.F.A. body entitled to deal with the annual convention, and it is probable that the two somewhat divergent opinions of the U.F.A. regarding the conduct of co-operative pools for various farm commodities will furnish material for a considerable amount of discussion. At the executive meeting, S. S. Sears of Nanton, chairman of the co-operative marketing committee, presented an encouraging progress report.

Co-operative marketing also will be very live topic at the annual convention, and it is probable that the two somewhat divergent opinions of the U.F.A. regarding the conduct of co-operative pools for various farm commodities will furnish material for a considerable amount of discussion. At the executive meeting, S. S. Sears of Nanton, chairman of the co-operative marketing committee, presented an encouraging progress report.

The United States is no longer the chief exporter of wheat to the United Kingdom. The largest supplies of this grain to the British Isles this month were from Canada, with the United States second and Argentina a close third. HONEST CONFESION

"I do not care for Shakespeare's plays," confessed J. Chester Cleee, "a stirring yarn of Bertha Clay's is good enough for me; the Bard of Avon gets much praise for worth I cannot see. No doubt my standing would improve if I would deign to lie and say that Shakespeare's dramas move my soul with passions high, but I shall not tell the common groove and shall until I die. If you like Shakespeare, it is well to read him all you wish, and of his merits roundly tell of some tempting dish; give me a book by Harold Bell, or Laura Jean, odds fish! And if you do not like my taste, the street is wide, my friend, and you may walk in haughty haste from the path I went; to bookshops different but whence we may our footsteps bend. Our fathers fought at Valley Forge that freedom might obtain, that one might read up Henry George, one take Nick Carter plain, that books you like might turn my gorge, while you hold me insane. A million men that Shakespeare's good, though doubtless they're right, and though I've had them if I could, to me he is a friar; a book by Mrs. Henry Wood will keep me up all night. The point is this: the country's tree, or Bunker Hill was vain; and if a book appeals to me, no man should voice disdain; and you may read your Bill McPhee, who died Willfully Raine. We should not cherish feelings hard, or throw bricks by the ton, because we cannot all regard with some famous one; and while you read your deathless Bunker Hill real J. Allan Dunn!"—Walt Mason.

Provincial Weekly News Bulletin

Coal Commission

Appointment of a commission to make an investigation of the coal mining industry in Alberta, in accordance with the decision made at the last session of the legislature, is announced by the provincial government. The members of the commission are H. M. E. Evans, Edmonton, chairman; R. G. Grinnan, Edmonton, and Frank Wheatley, Blairmore.

Livestock Exhibits for Shows

Alberta will be represented at Toronto and Chicago livestock shows this winter by some of the best stock in the west.

Selection of animals for these exhibits have been made by the committee appointed by the provincial government to that purpose, the following breeders in the province will be represented, no more entries being now taken: E.P. Ranch and W. C. Short will exhibit Shorthorns; Frank Collyatt, Crossfield, and Boggs of Westland, will exhibit Herefords; S. Henderson and the Lacome Experimental Farm will send Aherden Angus; Davenport of Acme, the Bar U, and the E.P. Ranch will send Percherons; the Lacome Experimental Farm will send Shires and a Clydesdale; Weaver Bros., Lethbridge, will send Clydes; and W. Urquhart of Fort Vermilion will send a Belgian mare.

Ft. Vermilion Maintenance Record

Threshing returns from nine farms in the vicinity of Fort Vermilion on the Peace River, 400 miles north of Edmonton; received at the department of Agriculture, show an average yield of wheat for the past season among these nine farmers of 20 bushels an acre. Wheat has been grown at this far northern Alberta point for 20 years.

Threshing Machines Registered

A total of 4400 threshing rigs have been registered with the department of agriculture to date, in comparison with 4700 at the same date of 1923.

Fall Stock Show

The fall sale and sale of livestock will be held in Calgary on the conclusion of the annual meeting of the Alberta Livestock Association of the south will be held also. This includes the Alberta Horse Breeders' association; the Alberta Hereford Breeders', and the Alberta Sheep Breeders'.

Calf Clubs in South

Boys and girls of the Lethbridge and district calf feeding club, will put 35 calves on special feeding, starting November 15, following inspection of calves. This club has made considerable progress.

Alberta Bee Keepers

Alberta now has more than 120 bee keepers according to lists which have been obtained by the department of agriculture. Compilation of statistics as to the amount of honey produced is now proceeding.

ern districts, where quite heavy yields are being reported. The average over the province for all grains, however, will be considerably below the average of last year. The grade of grain products to be left over to frost and to second growth, resulting in the marketing of green and tough grain. Considerable complaint has been made of the grading on this account.

Practically no fall plowing has been done in the province, due to delays in threshing operations.

Over the greater part of the province the supply of feed for the winter months is satisfactory, although there is a reported shortage in the south-eastern districts. Livestock generally is in good condition, and since large numbers are being marketed, there should be no difficulty about feed during the coming winter.

In the irrigated districts there is a large surplus of grain hay of excellent quality. Considerable alfalfa has also been produced.

Steady and consistent progress is reported in the dairy industry, and there will be more than a 20 per cent increase in production this year. A very large increase is also recorded the amount of surplus butter for export.

SEED GRAIN SURVEY

Announcement has been made by the Winnipeg representative of the Dominion seed branch to the effect that a survey is being commenced to find out where the shortages are in oats and barley for seed and where there are surpluses. Reports will be made regarding seed wheat at the same time, but the wholesale shortages are not expected in this grain as with the coarser cereals. W. P. Blakeman, who makes the announcement, has just returned from a conference of the branch officials at Ottawa, and states that arrangements are going forward with all speed, in view of the situation arising out of early frosts and bad weather.

HELPING THE FARMER

(As seen by a Farmer)

We must have government graders. They told us right away, Or we're in the grain business here. Can't make the business pay. So the graders came to help us; Great Scott, what did they do?

Our wheat that graded number one, They graded number two. The elevator cut us two cents down;

Then wrote to us to say: "We're sorry, but for number two, It's more than we should pay."

Put one thing I don't understand, And can't see how it's done; Although our wheat is number two;

Their flour is number one. Then now the graders must be paid.

No doubt that's only fair; But, where, I ask, do we get off? And echo answers, where.

THE HOGGOKALO-GINKASAURO

ever, there was serious trouble brewing. Old man Larvey couldn't get his crew to go back to their camp. The "Seventh-day" men refused utterly to enter the woods again until old Zack had gone up and investigated.

The old man was there looking around for a day or two. He suspected that a trick had been played and, coming across to the old squire's camp, accused Culley with picturesque vehemence. It was said that the argument that ensued between them was audible for two miles around, and that Culley expressed extreme chagrin and indignation at the charge.

But the whole story gradually came out, and Larvey, then on none too good terms with his father, stated a good against the old squire for damages on account of loss of time by his logging crew. After the old squire learned the facts, he settled the suit out of court for fifty dollars.

Sparks and Culley kept quiet; nor did the old squire call them to account for the prank. But the following April after all hands had been paid their winter wages for their work, the two jokers appeared to have talked the matter over together and decided that it was incumbent upon them to square the matter. Soon afterwards, the old squire, considerably to his astonishment, received a registered letter one night with fifty dollars in it.

The following autumn at the county fair I happened to meet Culley, and I questioned him. "That ginkasau cost you twenty-five dollars, didn't it?"

"Twas worth it!" he replied with a grin.

Was Troubled With Her Heart and Nerves For Years

Mrs. James Rutledge, Napan Station, N. S., writes:—"I think it my duty to tell you about what Millburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me."

For years I was troubled with my heart and nerves, and was so bad at times, I would faint away and fall right down where I was sitting or standing, and after one of these attacks I was unable to get up for weeks at a time, and feeling that life was not worth living.
